Subaru WRX/STI have always had a top mounted intercooler directly facing the hood scoop, which is highly efficient and easy to service. However, owners frequently are faced with excessive collection of debris in the fins, and cleaning of fins which are extremely delicate.

We've developed this anodized alloy framed, steel net protection system to prevent larger debris from contacting the intercooler, and prevent things like leaves from clogging the fins.

The system is easily detachable for cleaning and service, with quick-release lever system, and takes minutes to install. It is sure to add an extra layer of protection as well as peace of mind and enhance the visual appeal under the hood as well.
